By W. G. Bowdoin.

LBERTO BUCCINI, the decorative Italian artist, has gathered together a typical exhibition of his classic flower paintings, as recently executed by him, on canvas, which is to remain on view during the month of June.

Mr. Buccint began painting flowers at the tender age of seven, and has been painting them almost continuously ever since. He has developed a complete that is all his own.

He has been exceedingly happy in his registry of a bunch of Marechal Niel roses, in a large and highly impressive container. The colors used are here both naturalistic and brilliant. The composition has been well accomplished. secomplished.

The exhibiting artist has done so well with his first roses that he has tried his luck with some American Beautes, with which he has had equal success. There is not quite so great a clor variety but the rich red of the American Beauties is given full sway and the full blooms are imply gorgeous, as they appear in bit of Rookwood, with a bow of "His Message," shows a boquet of cut rosos, fresh from the hot house, as sent by the man to the girl, with he message told in flowers. The whole thing is elegant in conception and treatment. The flowers are full of significance, to sentimentalists. Mr. Buccini is quite as felicitous in his handling of white and mauve illacs, in a blue porcelain, with dull "sold cupid handles. Old gold broade portiers enter effectively into the
